What made you want to get a membership with the chamber?

We want to be involved in the community and meet other businesses in Warrensburg.

What do you love most about Warrensburg?

The home town feel.

Why are you passionate about your business?

We know there is a need. The mixed climate and area that we are in requires a pest control service to protect structures, and we like to be the best at providing that service.

What makes your business unique?

We try to go above and beyond for every customer. Our service is the most comprehensive and our staff is friendly and thorough.

How long have you owned your business?

ECHO Pest Control was started in 2010, our sister company started in the area in 2006.

In what ways has your business helped the local community?

We always try to support local businesses and community. We have used local vendors and donated to several schools, businesses, and individuals.

How and why did you get started in this line of work?

The owner, Ryan, started working between semesters in the industry and after college ventured out on his own and started with his first account in the Warrensburg area.

What is your favorite aspect of your job?

We love to solve issues and make life better for our customers.

In what ways has your business grown and developed over the years?

Starting in the owner's basement in 2006, to now a 4 location service in areas of the Midwest, we strive to grow and better our service every year.

In your opinion, what is the most enjoyable part of being able to serve the Warrensburg Community?

Warrensburg is friendly, it has a good small town feel and we have had the best response from the customers in the area. The people are the best!

TIP: Is it time to change your networking habits?

Do you sometimes feel stuck when it comes to building or maintaining your network?

Are you doing the same thing over and over again and expecting a different result?

If your attempts at bringing new people into your network aren't working, try something new. Alana Muller in Connecting: Seeing Patterns suggests looking at the following three situations. What patterns do you see? What's working, what's not?

1. Identifying who to connect with in a networking capacity. Do you keep a list of people already in your relationship base who you want to reconnect with? How about a list of people you would like to get to know? How do you manage those lists?

Read More

TIP: Why you should join industry organizations.

Rebecca Bodemann, VP of Sales at Xpedient makes the case for getting involved in industry organizations, "having that safe space and commonality with others allows for faster connections and deeper relationships that lead to business opportunities, mentorships, and potential future employers/colleagues." These are people in the same field as you, or complementary industries, so you'll find the right kind of opportunities.

Kelly Moden, VP of development at Community Housing Works, offers this advice to potential leaders about membership in industry organizations, "One of the biggest things that I tell them is to get involved in everything that you can early on in your career. The more you put in; the more you get out."

Joining a professional organization is one of the best ways of building a professional network, so what organizations should you get involved with? Google industry associations, professional associations, trade associations and then add your industry or profession. And join online associations as well.

FAST COMPANY

Leaders need to drop these 4 outdated remote work myths to stay competitive

Gusto's head of Remote Experiences explains that it's easy to make quick judgements about new work styles, but these assumptions will prevent businesses from succeeding.

Stop avoiding conflict and start advocating for yourself

Important changes in mindset are required to once and for all push past the issues that are holding you– or your company– back.

HAVING THE RIGHT HEALTH PLAN HAS NEVER BEEN MORE IMPORTANT

Now, more than ever, you need a benefits package designed for today's uncertainty.

WMMC Nationally Recognized for Its Commitment to Quality Care for Heart Attacks

WARRENSBURG, MO— Western Missouri Medical Center (WMMC) has received the American Heart Association's Mission: Lifeline® STEMI Referring Center Bronze recognition for its commitment to ensuring science-based treatment for all people experiencing a specific type of heart attack known as an ST-elevation myocardial infarction (STEMI). This type of heart attack is known to be more severe and dangerous than other types of heart attacks.

Each year, more than 280,000 people in the U.S. experience a STEMI, caused by a complete blockage in a coronary artery. Nearly 40% of people who go to the emergency room with acute coronary syndrome are diagnosed with a STEMI. Like all heart attacks, this requires timely treatment to restore blood flow as quickly as possible.

"WMMC is dedicated to improving the healthcare of our community," said Darinda Dick, President and CEO of WMMC. "We put proven knowledge and guidelines to work on a daily basis, so members of our community who experience a STEMI have the best possible chance of survival. When you're having a heart attack, time is critical, which is why receiving an award recognizing that we provide high-quality, life-saving care when time matters is an achievement we are very proud of."
